Michael Krumm is one of NISMO's greatest ambassadors and has competed in Nissan cars throughout his racing career.

Though in recent years he has focused on the Super GT Championship, two seasons in the FIA GT1 World Championship led to Michael winning the driver's title in 2011.

In September 2013, he drove the Nissan GT-R NISMO 'Time Attack' car that set the Nürburgring Nordschleife lap record for a volume production car with a time of 7 minutes, 8.679 seconds.

Michael's career has taken him all over the world but the focus of his racing is in Japan, where he is a NISMO-contracted driver. He is married to professional tennis player Kimiko Date-Krumm.
